

AmeriCold-Ontario Captures Top General Mills Prize...Again!

Atlanta, GA October 6, 2007 – For the second time in three years, AmeriCold's Ontario, California distribution center was named General Mills' "Frozen Facility of the Year"! The award is presented annually by General Mills and is based on warehouse performance in several key categories, including on-time delivery, order fill accuracy, turn times and housekeeping.

The success at Ontario is attributed to the tenure and commitment of the associates working on the General Mills account. "The staff at AmeriCold-Ontario takes great pride in meeting and exceeding customer expectations," says Greg Fowler, Manager of Frozen CSFs for General Mills. "The AmeriCold team takes ownership of our distribution program as if they were General Mills' employees... that's what sets them apart from most of their competition."

General Mills has a long-standing history with AmeriCold Logistics in Southern California, with the Ontario facility having served as a distribution site for Pillsbury (acquired by General Mills in 2001) beginning in the 1980's. "Our people are what make this operation such a success," says Marty Steinmetz, Sr. Director of National Accounts for AmeriCold. "With all of the competition in the area for distribution services, our customers know they can count on the Ontario team year after year to manage their business as if it were their own."

Last year's winner of the coveted General Mills prize, AmeriCold's West Memphis facility, was a close second in this year's network-wide competition. The West Memphis team is also geared up for another strong performance this coming year and hopes to take the award back from Ontario in 2008!
